

By Adam Platt |

Breakfast Ramble

Whenever I'm in the mood for something completely different, however, I'll bundle the family off to Crema Restaurante, on 17th Street, for baskets of warm tortilla chips with great spoons of fresh guacamole, flour tortillas filled with scrambled eggs and guajillo chile, and Julieta Ballesteros's great "Chilaquiles Verdes y Rojos con Huevos Poche," made with chicken and shredded tortillas and two kinds of salsa, mixed with melted Chihuahua cheese, fresh cream and fresh cilantro, and a single, wobbly poached egg.